

A network server, a transmission control method and a recording medium are provided for controlling an access to an information resource easily and flexibly. A WWW server has transmission control means for controlling transmission of a hypertext. The hypertext includes an access permission information concerning permission of the access to the hypertext. The transmission control means control the transmission of the hypertext to a terminal device in accordance with the access permission information when the terminal device requests for the access to the hypertext.